

Casual disagreement email to employer

Subject: Thoughts on the Recent Assignment

Hi [Manager's Name],

I wanted to share my thoughts about the new assignment I've been given. While I appreciate the trust placed in me, I feel the role might not align with my strengths and could potentially limit my contribution to the team's success.

I believe I could add more value if I continue working on [specific project/task], where I've already built expertise and momentum. Would it be possible to reconsider this distribution so the team benefits the most from everyone's skills?

Thanks for your understanding and for always being open to feedback. I'm happy to talk this over whenever it's convenient.

Best,

[Your Name]
